This Quarterly's reading list comes from Professor Zachary Moon, Assistant Professor of Pastoral Theology. When Momma Speaks: The Bible & Motherhood from a Womanist Perspective is a unique collection of biblical narratives that highlights the importance of motherhood. Written by Dr. Stephanie Buckhanon Crowder, this book serves as a powerful source for critical reflection, identification, and self-affirmation in the understanding of motherhood. From Hagar, Rizpah, Bathsheba, Mary, the Canaanite woman, to Zebedee's wife, the stories of these biblical mothers can be used to explore the dynamics of motherhood across different cultures and times. Professor Crowder provides an engaging womanist perspective on motherhood, offering insights into how the stories of these figures can be used as tools for empowerment and understanding.
